Marketing of terrorism through the Internet: The marketing of Hamas' messages of hatred and terrorism through an extensive network consisting of approx. 20 active websites. These websites are serviced by various companies worldwide, primarily by East European and East Asian companies (first priority) and US companies (second priority)

The upper part of the main page on Hamas' Izz al-Din al-Qassam website.
The website is serviced by a Malaysian company.

Overview

1. Palestinian and international terrorist organizations alike make massive use of the Internet as an important means for the uncensored and uncontrolled dissemination of terrorist-supportive propaganda, as well as for maintaining communication between the organizations (and the headquarters) and their infrastructures and target audiences (separated in many cases by geographical distances).
2. Terrorism marketing through the Internet has become all the more important in the wake of the September 11 terrorist attacks. Using the Internet, the various terrorist organizations are able to sidestep, with relative ease, the impediments imposed on their activities by the world governments (including the American administration) and, unhindered by either effective monitoring or censorship, disseminate their messages while taking advantage of the liberal approach and freedom of expression prevalent in Western countries.
3. The document aims to examine the Hamas movement's Internet infrastructure as an additional case study <sup>1</sup> of the marketing of terrorist propaganda through the Internet.

Characteristics of the Hamas movement's Internet infrastructure

4. The Hamas movement ascribes a high level of importance to spreading its propaganda through the Internet. Over the years, the movement has created an extensive and complex Internet infrastructure (including websites in 7 languages), distributing massive amounts of information both on current happenings as well as on Hamas' fundamental issues. This infrastructure, supported, in our assessment, by significant financial resources, includes approximately 20 active websites <sup>2</sup>, placing Hamas at the top of the list of Palestinian terrorist organizations making use of the Internet.
5. What follows is a list of Hamas' various websites and the present situation as regards the Internet service providers (ISP) used by the organization <sup>3</sup>, based on the findings of examinations we have conducted <sup>4</sup>. The websites are divided into four groups based on our assessment of their relative significance for the Hamas movement.

Characteristics of Hamas' websites: First priority group of websites

6. www.palestine-info.com: The Hamas movement's official and primary website. A news portal in Arabic, it is supported by several secondary websites. It contains information on the Hamas movement and its history, official announcements made by the movement, interviews with Hamas seniors, incitement against Israel and messages praising terrorism and its perpetrators.
7. The website's manager (and, probably, the manager of other Hamas websites <sup>5</sup>) is Nizar Hassan Suleiman Hussein, a senior Hamas activist in Lebanon (Beirut). It is our assessment that he is guided by the Hamas leadership in Damascus. His everyday activities include holding contacts with supporting parties abroad, in countries such as the UAE, Sweden and Russia <sup>6</sup>. His address, according to the whois.net website:

Nizar al-Hussein

P.O. Box 68/25

Beirut, na LB

Tel: +9745829460 <sup>7</sup>

nizar@palestine-info.com

8. Palestine-info, the main website, is supported by six secondary websites in different languages <sup>8</sup>:
  - a. www.palestine-info.co.uk, the official Hamas website in the English language;
  - b. [www.palestine-info.c c](http://www.palestine-info.c c), the official Hamas website in the French language.
  - c. www.palestine-info.ru , the official Hamas website in the Russian language;
  - d. www.infopalestina.com , the official Hamas website in the Malay language;
  - e. www.palestine-info-urdu.com, the official Hamas website in Urdu (the official language of Pakistan ).
  - f. www.palestine-persian.info, the official Hamas website in Farsi.
9. The above group of websites, as mentioned, is of prime significance among Hamas' websites. Following are additional groups of websites that can be classified as second, third and fourth priority websites.
  - a. The second priority group of websites:
    - i. www.alqassam.info: This is the official site of the Izz al-Din al-Qassam Brigades, the Hamas movement's operative-terrorist wing. The website, updated online, distributes video clips (suicide bombers' wills, displays of weaponry), messages issued by the organization and claims of responsibility for acts of terrorism, praise of suicide bombers, and messages of incitement to hatred and the encouragement of terrorism.
    - ii. www.hamasonline.com: A well-designed English-language website affiliated with Hamas. It is primarily aimed at target audiences abroad. The website, updated online, contains publications on current events, encouragement of terrorism against Israel and praise of suicide bombers
  - b. Third-priority websites—official publications:
    - i. www.fm-m.com: The official website of Hamas' Filastin al-Muslimah, a monthly periodical distributed from London.
    - ii. www.aqsavoice.com: The website of Al-Aqsa Voice, a radio station associated with Hamas.
    - iii. www.al-fateh.net: The website of Al-Fateh, a children's magazine associated with Hamas.

- iv. www.alresala.org: The website of Al-Resala, a weekly periodical published in Gaza.
- v. www.palestinegallery.com: An official Hamas website containing videos, slideshows and images documenting the jihad (holy war) against Israel.

c. Fourth-priority websites—all the rest:

- i. www.palestinianforum.net: Hamas' official message board website.
- ii. www.rantisi.net: A website dedicated to former Hamas leader Abd al-Aziz al-Rantisi.
- iii. www.sabiroon.net: A Hamas-associated website dedicated to supporting terrorist operatives, including suicide bombers.
- iv. www.alkotla.net: The website of the Islamic Bloc, Hamas' student movement.
- v. www.islamic-block.org: The website of the Hamas-associated student movement in the Al-Najah University<sup>9</sup>

10. The following conclusions arise from an analysis of Hamas' Internet service providers (as at October 25, 2004):

- a. Hamas' primary group of websites \(palestine-info\) is serviced—directly or through subcontractors—by East European companies: 2 Russian companies and 2 Ukrainian companies. Hamas' second choice for Internet service providers are East Asian companies: a Malaysian company and an Indonesian company. This group of websites is also serviced by an American company and a Dubai company.
- b. The second-priority group of websites \(alqassam.info, hamasonline\) is serviced—directly or through subcontractors—by companies based in Malaysia, UK and the US.
- c. The third-priority group of websites \(official publications\) is serviced—directly or through subcontractors—by four US companies and a Russian company.
- d. The fourth-priority group of websites \(all the rest\) is serviced—directly or through subcontractors—by three companies based in the US and one company based in Singapore.

11. The analysis of the Internet service providers is an indication, in our assessment, of a deliberate policy of the Hamas movement to avoid storing their first- and second-priority websites on American Internet service providers<sup>10</sup>. preferring in most cases to use the services of East European (Russia and Ukraine) and East Asian (Malaysia and Singapore) companies. Such a policy is an indication of Hamas' cautiousness and the movement's desire to preserve the flexibility and survivability of its Internet infrastructure over a prolonged period of time<sup>11</sup>. In contrast, Hamas' third- and fourth-priority websites are serviced mostly by American companies, as it is probably Hamas' assessment that the damage inflicted upon the movement in case the websites should be shut down would not be significant.

12. What follows are brief descriptions of the various websites, including listings of their respective Internet service providers.

<sup>4</sup> In our investigations on the identities of the Internet service providers, we have relied on the Haganah website (haganah.org.il) and the whois.net website.

<sup>5</sup> According to the Haganah website, these other websites include al-fateh.net, palestinegallery.com, fm-m.com and palestinianforum.net.

<sup>7</sup> While the address is in Lebanon, the telephone number listed is located in the UAE. This is meant, most probably, to turn attention away from Lebanon to the UAE. It is possible that Nizar al-Husseini has an office in the UAE. Worth mentioning in this context is that one of the Internet service providers used by Palestine-info.com is a company based in Dubai (see Appendix A).

<sup>8</sup> The languages chosen by Hamas may indicate the importance of target audiences in those countries.

<sup>9</sup> There is an additional website run by the student movement that has not been updated in nearly two years: <http://www.khayma.com/majles>.

<sup>10</sup> As opposed to the Palestinian Islamic Jihad, whose websites are serviced primarily by American companies.

<sup>11</sup> Thus, for example, on October 24, 2004, the manager of the Hamas message board (Hamas' official message board, see Appendix O) announced that the Russian government ordered the immediate shutdown of the server. The manager added that "we are constantly on the lookout for other providers in different locations."

Following is an article that appeared in the magazine and on the magazine's website. It is titled "Last will and testament of a shahid, the last will of the martyr Sa'id Hasan al-Houtari... who carried out the act of suicide in Tel-Aviv that led to the deaths of more than 21 Zionists and one hundred and fifty wounded" (the terrorist attack in question is one of the most murderous suicide bombing attacks perpetrated by Palestinian terrorists—a suicide bombing attack at a teenagers' club near Tel-Aviv's Dolphinarium in which 21 Israeli civilians, mostly teenagers, were killed). The magazine article praises the suicide bomber, turns him into a role model for the children and preaches to carry out additional suicide bombing attacks, based on verses from the Quran <sup>21</sup>.
